New Report Studies Appalachian Highway Corridors

NADO provided technical assistance to the Development District of Appalachia (DDAA) in the release of Local Development Districts: Pursuing Transportation-Led Economic Development. DDAA's report focuses on how improved rural transportation corridors in Appalachia can benefit from economic growth and development.

Featuring case studies in New York's Southern Tier, Northwest Alabama, and southern Virginia, the report analyzes how transportation infrastructure provides improved connectivity to rural regions, which in turn can facilitate economic development.
